GHI Members Change Resale Policy For Larger Homes

Shortly after midnight, following four wearying hours of debate, the membership of Greenbelt Homes, Inc., voted last Thursday at a special meeting to modify the sale and resale policy adopted by the GHI Board for the larger homes.

By a vote of 66 to 45, the membership gave general support to a proposal made by a group of petitioners, who had requested the special membership meeting. Their petition asked a revision of the policy adopted by the GHI board for determining the resale price of the four free-standing homes now being constructed on Northway, Woodland Way, and Hillside, and of the 25 townhouses scheduled for the tract opposite the North End School.

The membership voted to instruct the board to rework the resale policy, keeping in mind the "determination of this membership that no person who buys any interest in any new GHI home and lot (that will be built in the future) should be able to make a profit arising out of any transaction that may be attributed in any way to the acquisition of such home and lot at less than full market value on the date of the buyer's original acquisition of his interest in such home and lot."

The resolution adopted further stated that it was not intended to prevent any purchaser from realizing increases in the market value related to the decrease in the purchasing power of the dollar.

Before adoption, the petitioners' original resolution was amended on two major points: (1) the housing component of the consumer price index for the local area was substituted for the national consumer price index in determining the gain to be permitted the selling member; and (2) no member would be guaranteed the resale price unless the house upon resale was in salable shape. Use of appraisals on resale would be permitted to accomplish the latter purpose.

The housing price index, under the resolution adopted, would be applied to the actual cash investment (the down payment plus principal payments on mortgage) and improvements.

Original Board Proposal

The GHI board proposal was to use the total price of the home to determine appreciation. This appreciation at resale would be calculated in accordance with a formula that retains the same ratio that existed at the time of original purchase between the at-cost sales price and the appraised (true market) value of the new home.

Several GHI board members indicated that they had no serious objection to substituting the housing index for the appraised value in determining appreciation. However, they did feel that applying the index to the cash investment rather than to the full value of the house was inequitable in that it did not give the seller credit for the thousands of dollars of mortgage interest that he would have paid over the years.

Arguments for and against

Critics of the GHI board proposal countered that the new homeowner would be receiving several offsetting advantages, such as not paying mortgage charges on the full value of the land (the land being incorporated in the sales price at the original cost). Thus, they said, it was not inequitable to ask the homeowner to forgo the normal appreciation on the home and accept instead a token increase in his cash investment. (In an illustration presented by the petitioners, the token increase would amount to about $400 on a $27,000 house after 5 years.)

Opponents of the petitioners' proposal expressed concern that the proposal would be setting up two classes of GHI members — (1) the present owners who can sell their homes at any price; and (2) the owners of new homes whose resale prices would be restricted. There was fear that under this arrangement the new homes with their controlled prices would eventually provide unfair competition to pre-

Review Various Routes For Perimeter Road

The County Board of Education and City of Greenbelt representatives had another in a series of meetings on April 11 regarding the location of a perimeter road through parcel 2 — the tract between Ridge Road and the Baltimore-Washington Parkway scheduled for a 3-school complex.

Reviewed were the several alternative routes that have been suggested for providing a perimeter road which would help to handle the additional traffic that would be generated by the schools.

One alternative was placing the perimeter road along the western border of parcel 2. A disadvantage cited for this route was the higher cost involved. City officials also objected to this route because it would mean using GHI land.

Another alternative was to place the perimeter road through the center of parcel 2, going either to the east or west of the senior high school. The school board appeared receptive to this plan, although road would separate the senior high school from the athletic field. City officials also expressed preference for this route, noting that underpasses could be constructed.

A third suggestion, made by the school board, was to place the perimeter road through the sanitary landfill and have it cross the Parkway parallel to the present NASA Interchange. The city was non-committal on this plan.

Another suggestion was a perimeter road parallel to the eastern border of parcel 2, with a choice of Parkway bridges at different

Maryland Advancing Toward Its Constitutional Convention

by David Stern

Maryland's advance towards a new constitution passed another mark on Friday, March 24, when Governor Spiro T. Agnew signed into law the state's constitutional convention bill. Earlier, the Maryland Senate and House of Delegates had passed the measure by overwhelming votes of 42 to 1 and 135 to 5, respectively.

Three dates now stand out as marking the next steps on the road to a new constitution. On Tuesday, June 13, 1967, Maryland voters will elect 142 delegates to a constitutional convention, a number equaling the number elected to the House of Delegates. The election will be districted in a way similar to the election of assembly delegates, so that the northern district of Prince Georges County, to which Greenbelt belongs, will elect three convention delegates.

The second date is September 12, 1967, coinciding with Defender's Day, a state holiday commemorating the anniversary of the defense of Fort McHenry in 1814. On that day the convention will meet in Annapolis to begin a 3-month session, which may be extended an extra month by a majority vote.

At the end of their session, the convention delegates will vote on a final version of the constitution they will have drafted. It will then be presented to the voters in a special referendum, scheduled for May 14, 1968. If approved, the constitution would become generally effective July 1, 1968, although the terms of present elective officers would not be shortened.

The Existing Constitution

The constitution of Maryland dates from March, 1897, and follows earlier ones of 1851 and 1864. It has accumulated 215 amendments to date, including 13 passed last November. Among other things, the present constitution requires that "the sense of the people on calling a convention be taken every twenty years." Twice in the present century, prior to last year's referendum, have voters endorsed such a convention, but for various reasons none took place. The present bill follows directly the referendum of September 13, 1967, when Maryland voters, by a majority of 160,280 to 31,680 (19,090 to 3,417 in Prince Georges County) supported the drafting of a new constitution.

Long before this referendum, it had become evident that a revision of the constitution was desirable. In June, 1965, former Governor J. Millard Tawes appointed a Constitutional Convention Commission to study the existing constitution and propose changes, thus laying the groundwork for a future convention.

Recommendations

Even though the constitutional convention has no obligation to follow any of the commissioners recommendations, it is likely that many of them will be incorporated in the new constitution. These recommendations include the creation of a new elective office of lieutenant governor, the change of the offices of attorney general and comptroller into appointive offices and a permission to the Maryland assembly to extend its annual 70-day session another 30 days by a three-fifths majority vote. They also include a requirement that the governor propose future legislative redistricting after every federal census, such redistricting to take effect automatically in case the legislature fails to enact an alternate plan. Another proposal would limit criminal juries to the determination of facts, rather than the consideration of both the facts and the law, as is the case at the present time.

The Special Election

The special election on June 13 will be held on a nonpartisan basis and the Hatch act, barring federal employees from political activity, does not apply to it. Any citizen of Maryland is eligible for election, provided he is at least 21 years of age and has resided 3 years in the state and one in his legislative district. Candidates must file by April 21, and may withdraw their candidacy up to April 28.

A nonpartisan committee, sponsored by the League of Women Voters and including representatives of various local organizations, has been organized to conduct a preliminary selection of candidates from Prince Georges County. The list submitted by this committee will then be narrowed down by a panel of representatives from the county's Democratic and Republican Central Committees.

In preparation for the election, the county's board of Election Supervisors has scheduled special voter registration hours. In addition to the regular 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. office hours, persons may also register up until 9 p.m. on April 19, 20, 21, 26, 27, and 28, and on two Saturdays, April 29 and May 6, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Local Men File For Posts

Two Greenbelt residents, former city manager Charles T. McDonald and Howard Chasanow, filed as candidates for the post of delegate from Prince Georges county to the State constitutional convention. Thirty-two candidates will be chosen for 16 positions from the county. A screening committee composed of representatives from political, social, and civic organizations is currently interviewing candidates. A nonpartisan election to choose the delegates will be held June 13.

McDonald, a retirement management consultant, served 14 years as city manager of Greenbelt. He lives at 28 Woodland Way.

Chasanow, former Maryland State's Attorney and presently serving part-time in that capacity, is president of the Greenbelt Democratic Club and a member of the Charter Review Board. He resides at 56-B Ridge.

Lakeside Dr., Westway To be Cut Through

With the completion of University Square apartments scheduled for July 1, plans are proceeding for completion of roads connecting them to the center of Greenbelt.

Lakeside dr. and Westway are both to be cut through in the near future, possibly within a month. Permits for this were granted by the city last fall. To prevent overloading of Lakeside dr., the permits included a condition that the extension of this street would not be opened before the completion of Westway.

Both streets will be 36' wide, with concrete gutters and a 60' right-of-way, except for a short section of Westway near Ridge rd., between GHI property and the Jewish Community Center, which will be 24' wide and will have open gutters. The extension of Lakeside dr. will cross a new 72' storm sewer, which replaces the creek entering Greenbelt Lake from the south.

..... City Notes

With one pending and one earlier resignation by members of the police force, the Greenbelt Police Dept. is shorthanded. PFC Richard Ambrose submitted his resignation as of April 14 and former officer Ralph Bennett resigned several weeks ago. Currently the Dept. is looking for replacements to bring the staff back up to full complement.

Parcel 7 is in the news again. This tract, which lies along Crescent Rd. at the entrance to Boxwood Village, will be divested soon of the heavy equipment stored there by a grading contractor. He will be moving his equipment to a site in Virginia, where he has a long-term contract. Activity reported on parcel 7 last week had to do with repair of some of that equipment prior to its removal from Greenbelt. In addition, the city's Public Works Dept. plans to plant several trees along the public right-of-way on Crescent Rd. These trees were made available by a purchase from the state Dept. of Forestry. The new trees will screen the denuded land from view by persons entering Greenbelt at Kenilworth Ave.

The city received delivery last week of the most expensive piece of equipment it has ever purchased—the new rubber-tired tractor shovel, which cost over $17,000. The shovel will be used primarily at the landfill site but it will also be used wherever large scale earth moving is involved.

The Public Works Dept. performed many odd springtime jobs. They fertilized the grass in all municipal parks and playgrounds, painted new bleachers prior to installing them at the ball park, painted 12 picnic tables which will soon be placed in city parks, and cut grass near the Municipal Bldg. for the first time of the season.

The city's leaf vacuum will continue to be operated as necessary. Citizens are reminded that burning of leaves is illegal. A city ordinance also prohibits the piling of trash, placed for special pick-up, along the street. Police have recently been taking some legal action against offenders.

Six new park benches have been placed in municipal parks and playgrounds recently. Two have been added at the Lake Park—one near the dam and another on the peninsula. In addition, each of four playgrounds has received one each, for the use of mothers who accompany their toddlers—at the top of the hill in A block, at 19 Ridge, at 12 Hillside, and at 2 Northway.

As weather permitted, the Public Works Dept. continued with the paint-up program for play equipment. All equipment which had previously received a primer coat has now received its final coat of paint.

The gaping holes in the commercial center have finally been fixed after a plumbing contractor repaired the heating system for the adjacent stores. The sidewalk in front of the Ben Franklin store has also been patched, but repair of the landscaping is still incomplete.

Contractors for the Springhill Lake development have paved portions of Breezewood Dr. and Springhill Lane with their final surfacing.

Springtime rang out in all the activities of the Public Works Dept. last week. Baseball season. . . The Little League ball field is ready to go, including new paving in the areas under the bleachers. Flowers . . . Tulips are in bloom in the beds at the Center; the protective fences around those beds have been removed and the grass cuttings from the first mowing of the season cleared away. Trees . . . newly planted along Ivy and Lastner Lanes and Crescent Rd. bounding the cleared parcel at the entrance to Boxwood Village. Clean-up . . . special trash collections increased as citizens got into the swing of the Fire Dept's clean-up campaign.

Temporary repairs to Julian Ct. whose pavement had been damaged by extensive cave-ins, have been completed by the WSSC and the local developer.

sent GHI homeowners wishing to sell.

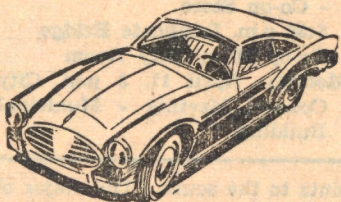

Adherents of the petitioner's proposal argued that there were differences in the situation of the original homes and the new homes. First a profit incentive had to be provided for the original homeowners because of GHI's difficulty in selling the original homes, whereas, in the case of the new homes, there is a waiting list. Second, the owners of the original homes assume the risk of finding a buyer when selling, whereas, in the case of the new homes, the corporation is agreeing to purchase back the homes.

A point frequently repeated by those favoring the petition was that by keeping the price of the new homes controlled it would be possible not only for the first buyer but also for subsequent buyers to afford the new homes. Opponents stated that the petitioners' proposal was too severe in that the first buyer would be subsidizing the second buyer and so on, since each new buyer would be getting a house at lower ratio of sales price to true market value. The GHI board proposal had provided that the same subsidy (ratio of sales price to true value) would be provided each subsequent purchaser.

At the outset of the meeting, 30 minutes were given to each side to present its case. Speaking for the petitioners were Ben Rosenzweig and Cliff Simonson; speaking for the GHI board were directors Nat Shinderman and Jim Smith. Full participation by the audience followed.

VIETNAM PICKETS IN THE LIONS DEN

A group carrying placards opposing the draft and the war in Vietnam picketed the American Legion hall on Monday night, April 10, while Lt. General Louis B. Hershey was addressing the Greenbelt Lions Club. Hershey, the director of the National Selective Service System, was scheduled to speak on the new selective service program. The picketing apparently alarmed attendant legionnaires, who called the police. Soon after they arrived, however, the Lions Club president, William Hand, invited the pickets to join the meeting. They came, they stayed, they asked questions, and the evening ended in an orgy of hand-shaking.

According to Allan Lencheck of the Greenbelt Committee for Peace in Vietnam: "The Lions were very nice."

Course in Boating Offered

The Belair Yacht Club is offering a boating course, to be held 8 p.m. on eight Mondays following April 17, at Whitehall School in Belair. The course is free, except for the cost of a $3.50 textbook. Sailing courses for youths and adults are also being organized. Call 262-4260 for registration and details.

Public Meeting on Landfill

District of Columbia representatives, headed by Mr. Roy L. Orndorff, Director of Sanitary Engineering for the District Government, will be guests of the Beltsville-Vansville Citizens Association on Wednesday, April 19. Mr. Orndorff is expected to speak on the sanitary landfill the D. C. Commissioners propose for the relief of the Kenilworth Dump, on the 143 acre tract they now own in the northeast corner of Beltsville, Vansville.

This operation has been opposed by residents of the Beltsville, Vansville area. They argue that the proposed landfill would affect homes, schools and churches in the Beltsville, Vansville area. Parts of the towns of Greenbelt and Laurel, also lie within a three mile circle of the proposed site.

The meeting, to be held at 8 p.m. in the Beltsville Elementary School on Powder Mill Road, is open to the public.

ST. HUGH'S SPRING SOCIAL

Speaking Sternly . . . by David Stern

Joint Return

"And this, darling, isn't correct either."

"Whats that?"

"Our daughter, bless her. You already claimed her exemption on line 3a of page 1, and these details are only for dependents listed on line 3b."

"Oh."

"And look here - how much is $336.49 and $87.88?"

"$413.37?"

"Guess again. And it isn't $524.37 either, as you have written here."

"All right, all right. Give me another blank form and I'll start from scratch again. It's a good thing that I picked up a whole stack of them at the post office."

"It's a pretty thin stack by now. Here, have one."

"Thanks. How about another aspirin?"

"You shouldn't be taking too many pills, I keep telling you. Why can't you do it right just once and be done with the job until next year?"

"All right, anything you say, sugar honey. Where's that form W-2 I had here a minute ago?"

"You have it somewhere on the table. If you only didn't make such a mess you wouldn't be looking for it every five minutes. Look here. Ah, told you so."

"O.K. Name, address - I can copy those things later. Employer . . ."

"Watch out when you copy those things. I'll never forget how you copied the wrong social security number year after year, from 1961 to 1965. And then we had to wait for ages for that 1965 refund to arrive, remember?"

"Please! I'm confused enough. Where's that W-2 form again?"

"Under the tax return sheet you're writing on."

"Ah. This takes care of their come item, and of the withholding. Now turn it over and . . ."

"Remember now - don't fill out the top lines. That's only for dependents listed on line 3b of the other side."

"Right-o. We don't deduct for medicines, or do we?"

"I have all the receipts in the drawer, but somehow it doesn't add up to enough. Have you really saved all of yours?"

"Of course, and given them all to you. Now let's see - medical. Uh-uh. They changed all the rates at the end of July, didn't they?"

"You've already gone over that last week. Here, copy this return."

"Thank you. I really appreciate your help in going over all this."

"So now we are all done. It's late enough too."

"If you do not mind, let me check it over. Is this the correct social security number?"

"Ah - yes. Here."

"Fine. Now income - yes - I see you didn't forget to deduct those five dollars for the rescue squad. Good boy. And you did not put in the license plate fees like you did last week. And - good grief!"

"What now?"

"Those $3.75 you included in our income."

"We have ten shares in Co-op. There's a dividend notice, somewhere under this pile."

"I know, but dividends under a hundred dollars are not counted. Ah - here you are, instructions for page 2, part II, line 1b. Darn it, you'll have to do it again tomorrow night."

"Honey?"

"Yes?"

"Think it's all right for me to take another aspirin?"

ARTS FESTIVAL TO BE HELD HERE

A day-long Arts Festival at the Youth Center on Sunday, April 30, is planned by the Greenbelt Recreation Department, sponsored by the county's Recreation Department.

The program of events from 1 to 5 p.m. will include a band concert, three films (including one on Carl Sandburg) prepared by the Poetry Club, a demonstration of the potter's wheel, and an exhibition of square dancing by the Kalico Kickers.

These events will take place against a background of displays, including the work of the Arts and Crafts Guild, the adult ceramics class of the Recreation Department, and the department's children's arts and crafts class.

Fantasy for Children

A Fantasy for Children, Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp, adapted from the Tales of the Arabian Nights, will be presented on Saturday and Sunday, April 15 and 16 at 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. in the Fine Arts Theatre at the University of Maryland.

For reservations and further information, contact the Fine Arts Box Office at 454-2201 from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays.

Recreation Review

by Darald Lofgren
Director of Recreation

Teen Club Chatter

The Reflections will play, for the Teen Club, at the Youth Center this Saturday night, April 15th, from 8 to 11 p.m. Dress code will be school clothes. Teen Club members will be admitted at one half of the regular admission price.

The Prince Georges County Heart Fund Dance, at the Greenbelt Armory, with Lawrence and the Arabians, was a great success with 1,100 teenagers in attendance. A check for $600.00 has been sent to the Heart Fund Association as profits for the night.

Coming attractions:

April 22nd - The Pagans

April 29th - Lawrence and the Arabians plus The Zebras and the fabulous Sparks.

City Basketball Champs

In an exciting championship game, last Monday night, the Falcons downed the Devils 80-63. Individual trophies were presented and the Falcons will represent Greenbelt in the County League next year.

Men's Slow-Pitch

The Greenbelt teams are now being formed and there are still a few openings. If you are 18 or over and would like to play on a slow-pitch team, contact the Recreation Department, 474-6878. Games will start in the next few weeks.

Girls' Softball

We are taking names of girls 10 and under, 12 and under, and 15 and under who would like to play softball this summer. Call 474-6878 and we will put your name on a roster. Games will begin after school closes.

Area Science Fair

The 19th annual Prince Georges Area Science Fair will be held in the Cole Activities Building at the University of Maryland this weekend. The exhibits will be open to the public on Saturday, April 15, from 7 to 9 p.m.; on Sunday, April 16, from 9 a.m. to noon and from 4:30 to 9:30 p.m.; and on Monday, April 17, from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

LITTLE LEAGUE CHATTER

by Jerry W. Shafer

Little League season is just around the corner and all eight teams are busy getting ready for a fine year. We wish to thank the city for the repair work and painting at McDonald Field. Everyone should plan to see the boys play on this fine field.

Greenbelt Little League has a number of ways of earning money to help finance this fine program, and Candy Sales is one of them. This weekend Little League boys will be knocking on doors selling a fine assortment of candies again this year. Please help support a fine program for about 200 boys by buying a box and at the same time enjoying this fine candy.

Coaches are still in demand for the farm system. If anyone is interested please contact Commissioner Eugene "Gene" Kellaheer at 474-4034 or Commissioner Harold "Dinks" Lloyd at 474-6936.

Boys can still sign up for this year by contacting either Commissioner or any manager of a Team.
